INDIANAPOLIS March 22—Evening—The most destructive fire that ever occurred in this city broke out about 7 o'clock this evening in a new four story block known as the Exchange block on Pennsylvania street, between Market and Ohio streets, consisting of six store rooms which were almost completed, entirely destroying it. The next building in the course of the fire was the Martindale block, corner of Pennsylvania and Market streets, comprising many stores and a number of offices which was entirely destroyed. From thence the fire continued to Sppafi's livery stable on Wabash street and to several smaller buildings in the rear of the Martindale block, which were destroyed. At 8 o the fire was apparently under control and will probably extend no further. The amount of loss can not be ascertained. It is estimated at between $300,000 and $400 000.

The President characterizes as untrue a statement published that he has intimated an intention of vetoing any bill providing for an inflation of the currency. LINN COUNTY

THE GOOD CAUSE MOVING ON

ALBANY, March 23 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

I see but little in your paper in reference to the Independent movement in Linn county. I hope you do not suppose the movement is not being carried forward here. The people of this county were not in the best humor to be trifled with, and the proceedings of the Democratic State Convention added very greatly to their discontent. Of course the Democracy of Linn, or most of them, were willing to see our fellow-townsman, Mart Brown nominated for State Printer. He is a pretty good fellow and would as well have the office as for anybody else to have it, provided always that in order to give it to him we did not have to countenance the trickery that gave their nominations to some other candidates. But under the present circumstances I hear a great many Democrats say they are resolved to support an independent ticket if a good one is put into the field. This county has always been regarded as the banner county of Democracy, but it will give a handsome majority this time for a good independent ticket. There is great enthusiasm among the Independents, and they are increasing daily in numbers and confidence.

MURDER OF A PROTESTANT CLERGYMAN BY A MEXICAN MOB.—A City of Mexico dispatch of March 10th, says: At Ahualulco in the State of Jalisco last Sunday a mob incited by the harangue of a priest who advised the extermination of the Protestants went in the night to the residence of Rev J Stevens, a Congregational minister sent out by the Board of Foreign Missions, and with cries of "Long live the priests," seized Stevens, beat his brains out, chopped his body to pieces and sacked his house of all the valuables. The mob was finally tardily suppressed by the authorities. The Governor sent troops to the place and ordered the arrest of all the priests there and in the neighboring towns, and a rigid investigation of the affair. A mob at Sabuayo under similar influences attacked the garrison. The town was burned with the public archives and the houses pillaged.

EUREKA March 24—The question that has arisen during the late term of the District Court in regard to the organization of the town government for Eureka has been the most exciting of all others during the term. The case was brought before the Court upon the petition of Daniel Morgan against D H Hall, L W Cromer and L E Phillips, Commissioners of Eureka county. The petitioners claimed that the organization was illegal and that the Commissioners had no right to act in the capacity of Trustees of the town, for the reason that the required three fifths of the qualified voters had not signed the petition to the Board of Commissioners, and endeavored to show that the petition was not properly signed, and that the affidavits were irregular and void. An effort was made by the Commissioners to show that the petition was regular and that the Commissioners were the only power to act on it. At a meeting of the Court this morning the following order was made: It is hereby ordered that all proceedings had by the Board of County Commissioners on the 2d day of December 1873, touching the application of the act in relation to the government of cities and towns in this State to the town of Eureka, be and the same is hereby annulled. As soon as the decision was announced the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. Knots of men gathered on the street corners and congratulated one another on the pleasing results. Later in the day salutes were fired and a band of music appeared on the street. To-night the Commissioners were burned in effigy.

SAN DIEGO March 23—A special dated Tucson A T, March 22d, says: John P Clum has recently been appointed agent of San Carlos Apaches Agency, for them to be maintained separate from the White Mountain Reserve.

A reliable letter from Camp Grant of the 17th says Gen Crook was there personally looking into the causes of the San Carlos outbreak and the efficiency of the scouts. It is reported that Gen Crook is convinced that the San Carlos outbreak was not caused by any white persons, but by a band of Apaches under Cocknes. Major Randall of Camp Apache and Lt Schuyler of Camp Verde are out in the Final mountains with about 100 troops well equipped, and the record of these officers justifies the belief that they will soon make many peaceable Apaches. No late depredations are reported. All quiet in Sonora.

THE ROYAL WEDDING.—HOW THE DUKE BLUNDERED.—The marriage ceremony of the Duke of Edinburgh has been served up in great detail in the English papers. Only a few, however, have had the temerity to tell how the bridegroom bungled and kept the bride waiting for the ring. It seems that the Duke received the ring from his brother, but found that the prayer book in his hand prevented his making the proper use of it. He offered the book to one and then another, but all fought shy of it, and the spectators naturally were worked up to a dread that he would either throw it at Dean Stanley's head or quietly slip it up his sleeve. He appears to have adopted the latter alternative, for we are told that he finally mastered the difficulty and gracefully slipped the ring on the outstretched finger. This triumph of Ducal dexterity must have been inconceivably gratifying to the spectators. Another important item, which has not found general circulation, is that in joining hands the Dean held them together longer than is customary. This is excusable. Deans do not get the opportunity of holding two royal hands at once every day in the week, and cannot be censured for holding on to them as long as possible.—Chicago Tribune.

KING OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS

DAVID KALAKAUA ELECTED KING OF HAWAII NEI

A Riotous Mob of Queen Emma's Adherents Attack the Assembly Chamber

KING DAVID INVOKES FOREIGN INTERVENTION AND U S AND BRITISH MARINES FROM [illegible] SHIPS OVERAWE THE RIOTERS

The King Appoints His Brother Heir Apparent

(Correspondence S F Chronicle)

HONOLULU, H I, March 1?, 1874

Since my last letter the little Kingdom of Hawaii Nei has passed under the kingly sway of a new ruler, and as I then predicted, Colonel David Kalakaua is the man selected by the people to rule over them. He proved himself thoroughly master of the situation and although strongly opposed by the foreign and church influence of the Islands, his popularity among the natives secured his triumphant election to the vacant throne. The triumph was in one sense easily gained. It was noticeable from the day of Lunalilo's death that the issue of the campaign could be but in one way. Kalakaua was as certain of the crown as if he had been the undisputed heir apparent. Therefore I say in one sense the victory was an easy one to achieve, but in another view the triumph is one upon which those who have the good of this little kingdom at heart cannot afford to indulge in much glorification. For the first time since the independent Government of Hawaii was founded the hands of the natives have been raised against each other. The record of the election of Kalakaua is stained with blood, and in the history of the Kingdom must now be written the first record of an attempt to create civil war. The partisans of Queen Emma, more rash and imprudent than wise in their adherence to the fallen princess, inaugurated a riot in her behalf which ended in the arrest of a goodly number and in staining the hitherto fair name of that circle.

THE ELECTION

In accordance with the call of the late Ministry the Legislative Assembly convened in the Court House at Honolulu on Thursday the 12th of February to elect a successor to William Lunalilo, late King of Hawaii. There was a little preliminary skirmishing by the friends of Queen Emma in the Assembly. Knowing that the election of Kalakaua was certain, they raised a point as to the legality of the Assembly and endeavored to gain time to labor in the interests of their favorite, by dissolving the Assembly as incompetent to elect under the Constitution. These tactics however were met by the Supreme Court Judges, who declared the Assembly legal and competent. The vote was then taken, and out of the forty five members constituting the body thirty nine gave their votes to Prince David Kalakaua, leaving but six poor votes for the opposing candidate, Queen Emma. This was a complete and sweeping victory, and the announcement was received by the friends of the new King with cheers and rejoicing. Queen Emma remained locked up in her palace, sullenly meditating on the disappointments to which human ambition is subject. Whether she knew and approved of the action of her supporters when the result was made known, it would be unfair and ungallant to presume. It is hard to believe that she who has so long borne the name of the Good Queen could have approved, much less prompted, the bloody work which her partisans attempted and came very near carrying into full execution.

THE COMMITTEE ATTACKED

When the election was announced outside the Court House a few cheers were attempted, but they were instantly drowned by the yells and cries of rage of the mob which had assembled. Some four or five hundred natives had gathered around the building. Orators, mostly of the "sans culottes" class, were busy here and there exciting the passions of their hearers against the wishes of the people in making Kalakaua King. No outbreak occurred until the Committee, which had been appointed to notify the King of his election, attempted to leave the building and enter the carriage waiting to convey them to the palace. The crowd surrounded the carriage and laid hands on the members of the Committee, who attempted to defend themselves as best they could without weapons, and one or two of them were badly wounded before they effected an entrance into the building, to which they retreated. The carriage was almost instantly demolished, the spokes and other pieces serving as weapons to arm the rioters, who now began to be warmed up for further destruction. In the rush at this moment a foreigner named John Foley, who endeavored to rescue Major Moehonua (against whom the mob appeared to be particularly spiteful), was struck by some one in the crowd, whereupon he squared himself and struck right and left, but only for a moment. A blow with a stick from behind felled him to the ground, and he would have been killed in all probability, but that Major Wodehouse, the British Commissioner, who happened to be near, forced his way through the crowd and stood over the man until he was carried away, badly but not seriously hurt.

STORMING THE BUILDING

The Committee having got back inside the Court House, the mob now surged around to the front entrance, where with savage yells they demanded that the Representatives appear. Whenever one of these was seen at an upper window, fists and sticks would be shaken at him and the shout went up, "Look out for yourself!" while the eyes of the upturned faces glared with demoniacal fury. Repeated attempts were made by the Marshal and Deputy and by well known foreigners to persuade the mob to disperse peaceably, but these attempts only seemed to still further excite their unreasoning rage. They declared that they had nothing against any foreigner, but only wanted to get hold of the native Representatives to wreak on them their vengeance for having voted against Queen Emma. The situation of the members was now getting precarious—shut up unarmed in a building the doors of which would yield to a moderate assault, with a howling mob without apparently thirsting for their lives.

The cry was now raised by the mob (about 4 o'clock), "Break in the back doors!"—the front being guarded by the police. (It is proper to state just here that throughout the riot the native police were of little or no use.) One or two rushes with a piece of lumber used as a battering ram, and the folding doors yielded and the mob poured in. The members were now mostly all in the upper portion of the building, with several of the Ministers, Judges and other officials.

SACKING THE COURT HOUSE

The entire building was now at the mercy of the mob, and the destruction of chairs, tables, furniture, papers and books was executed so rapidly that in less than half an hour the furniture and contents were thrown out from nearly every room on the first and second floors. The office of the clerks of the Court and the library alone were respected. Mr Barnard, the assistant clerk, with Sheriff Dayton and two policemen, guarded these records of the Court and persuaded the rioters to leave them untouched, as they were the property of the people. Had the wills and records and deeds here been destroyed, the loss could never have been repaired, and the confusion to which it would have given rise must have affected every interest in the kingdom.

For a time after gaining an entrance the mob devoted their attention to the destruction of property, and appeared to forget the Representatives while they proceeded to smash furniture, tear up papers and mutilate books in the offices of the Attorney General, Judge Hartwell, Judge Widemann, the Police Magistrate and the Police Court room. Many valuable private and some public documents were ruthlessly destroyed, of a nature that can never be replaced.

All the windows and most of the window sashes of the Court House, both above and below, were broken with coral stones or with clubs thrown by the mob.

ATTACKING THE REPRESENTATIVES

And now commenced the attack on the Representatives as they were one by one found in corners of the building. Clubs improvised from table and chair legs were freely used, and that murder outright was not accomplished can only be explained by the number of the assailants all striking blindly at once. A few foreigners were active and courageous in endeavoring to rescue and save the members. As it was, four were seriously injured by blows about the head, viz: Messrs Kapu and Haupu of Hilo, Nahinu of South Kona and Moehonua of Honolulu. The following were badly but not seriously cut and bruised: Lonohea and Burch of Wailuku, Kaaua and Kupihea of Molokai, Kapule of Makawao, Keakaunu of Kohala, Kauai and Kakani of Hana, Maui. We have heard of but one person outside the Representatives who was attacked and beaten—J Kou Unauna. Hon T W Martin and his son Hon J H Martin, both members of the Assembly, barely escaped from the mob through the courageous assistance of foreign friends.

AMERICA AND ENGLAND TO THE RESCUE

Immediately after the attack on the Committee as described above, some of the members suggested that assistance be sent for from the ships of war in the harbor. But it was not until further violence had been perpetrated by the mob, and they had plainly declared their intention of having the lives of the members, that the authorities consented to seek for foreign assistance. A request from the King elect and from their Excellencies the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Governor of Oahu was made to the representatives of Great Britain and the United States for the landing of a sufficient force for the protection of life and property. In a few minutes thereafter a squad of marines and sailors from the U S S Tuscarora and Portsmouth, and shortly after their arrival a similar squad from H B M S Tenedos, landed and marched up to the Court House and took possession of the building and ground. Some of the rioters who were actively engaged in the work of destruction in the building no sooner caught sight of the armed force than they dropped their clubs and mingled with the crowd, which soon after gradually dispersed. A few were arrested on the spot, but the majority marched off in triumph, shouting and hurrahing for the Queen. To her residence they repaired in a crowd and saluted her with exultant cheers, while some of her partisan leaders made incendiary speeches.

THE BRITONS DEFEND THE TEMPLE OF JUSTICE

The fires of the mob were in full blast at Her Majesty's residence, speech making and roasting after sundown, when a file of the Tenedos marines marched into the yard and dispersed them, the police making one or two arrests. A notable circumstance throughout the whole of the riot was that, with the one exception at the beginning, no foreigner was molested, though if the rioters had not been dispersed by a show of an armed force just at the time when they were, indiscriminate violence, robbery and arson would have resulted throughout the city. Among the foreigners who were prominent in efforts to check the rioters were Messrs C C Harris, S B and George Dole. When the rush was made for the Police Court room, Mr Harris stood in the doorway and, at the peril of his life, resisted the infuriate mob. When the rioters raised their clubs over his head, he threw off his hat and dared them to strike a blow. Then single handed he pitched about a dozen of them off the steps and continued to guard the outer door, though the rioters effected entrance to another door and succeeded in their designs of destroying the furniture.

THE ARRESTS

In all 73 persons were arrested charged with being concerned in the riot, and the majority of these have been recognized by different members of the Assembly. All have been examined by the police magistrate, and 30 have been bound over to await trial at the April term of the Supreme Court. The universal sentiment of this community is that, if convicted, as they certainly will be, they should be dealt with with the utmost severity.

THE NEW GOVERNMENT

Kalakaua was duly installed and took the oath to support the Constitution on Friday the 13th day of February. Four days after he appointed his Cabinet as follows:

His Excellency Paul Nahaolelua, Minister of Finance; William L Green, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Hon H A Widemann, Minister of the Interior; Hon A S Hartwell, Attorney General.

The gentlemen appointed to the new Government are very popular in the Islands, and and Kalakaua has gained immensely in the esteem of his subjects by his wise action in appointing them. He has begun his reign by securing as his counsellors men in whom the public have the highest confidence, and every thing now points to a strong decisive Government, which is precisely what these Islands need at the present time. As a still further bid for popularity the King has forestalled the possibility of any more riots at an election for King by appointing his successor. The young man designated as the heir apparent to the Hawaiian throne is William Pitt Leleiohoku, brother of the new King, who is now invested with the title of His Royal Highness by virtue of the royal decree. The general orders of the King concerning the army and the general management of affairs show that he is a man of strong mind and fair political knowledge, and I doubt not that under his reign the Kingdom of Hawaii will become more prosperous than it ever was in the days of Kamehameha, whose memory the natives so blindly worship.

LETTER FROM M'MINNVILLE

A METROPOLITAN PRIMARY IN A RURAL PRECINCT

McMINNVILLE March 22, 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Last Saturday witnessed a new thing in Yamhill Republicanism—that of holding a primary meeting cut and dried with all the necessary adjuncts of packing, stuffing, repeating, etc, just as we are accustomed to have it in the metropolis, but in a style which to the rural mind is anything but attractive. It had been publicly announced for some days that letters had been received from the Custom House at Portland stating that "the people might select whom they pleased." Accepting this gracious permission [illegible] but little interest was manifested in the primary to be held Saturday afternoon. But when the meeting organized and the balloting commenced, the fun commenced also. Without making nomination or any other sign of who was the man, the first ballot resulted in the election of a delegate, the second likewise, but on the third a contest arose and after repeated balloting, in which the number of votes cast steadily increased until the original number was doubled, the slate candidate was defeated. By this time the fun was furious. Democrats, Independents and all were pressed into service. Voting early and often was the order of the day. One zealous voter having deposited four ballots in the teller's hats cast his fifth vote while the others were being counted. Blank votes were thrown out when they interfered with the sentiment of the Chair, and all known expedients were practiced with such success that every Mitchell man I know in the precinct is a delegate to the County Convention. As these are very few the remaining delegates are good square men. I am at a loss to know what was the object of this disgraceful procedure, but the logical result is that no man in the precinct can feel himself in any manner bound by the actions of a delegation so chosen.

THE INDEPENDENTS

Held their County Nominating Convention on Saturday and have put out a ticket which is badly mixed. The Convention did not send delegates to the Independent State Convention, and there is talk of calling a mass meeting for that purpose. I expect from this time on to see the pot boiling lively, so more anon.

AIDE

THE TERRITORIES

Utah mines are [illegible] looking up in London and San Francisco.

The celebration of St Patrick's Day at Walla Walla was a grand affair.

The thermometer marked 53 below zero at Ula, in Southern Colorado, a few mornings since.

Owing to the tightness of the money market Utah hens have concluded to lay eggs for twenty five cents a dozen.

Charles W Frush has left Walla Walla for parts unknown, and certain merchants and others say "woe the day we trusted Charles."

The Renton coal mines, near Seattle, are going forward finely. A good shipment is ready at the mine and will soon be brought down.

General James S Brisbin has made arrangements to secure one hundred more animals for the Zoological Society at Philadelphia from the Rocky mountains.

Steele, the Boulder murderer, who was said to have religion while under sentence of death, isn't troubled with it now that he is in the penitentiary for life.

It is reported from the Red Cloud agency in Wyoming that the Cheyennes and Arapahoes have determined to remain at the agency and not participate in the war.

Delegate Elkins, of New Mexico, has a bill before Congress asking that body to appropriate $60,000 to build a military telegraph line from Santa Fe to Tucson.

Wm H N Steele, who found it to his advantage to decamp from Tacoma after severely cutting Mr Kaplow the Deputy Sheriff, has been heard from at Wrangel.

Rev J D Bell, late pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Canyon, Colorado, has sued David Lucas of that place for slander, assessing his damages at $5 000.

Mr A H Todd writes from San Francisco to an Olympia paper that it is contemplated to put a steamer on the route between Puget Sound and that city very soon.

In the Cheyenne graveyard there are two tomb stones with the hopeful inscription: "Died in the hope of a happier home in Heaven." Could they have found a worse one?

A Montana paper says: "In this Territory there is Government land, 'plenty,' A No 1 for agricultural purposes, subject to settlement under the Pre-emption and Homestead laws."

During the month of February the gold and silver shipments of Gilpin county, Colorado, reached $150 552 in coin. The advance in the amount of mill gold over January was $28,837.

Discouraging news comes to us from the San Juan country in Utah. The Indians on the route are said to be prospecting for miners' scalps. The route is infested by hostile Indians.

The market in Montana for farm products is somewhat limited, hence prices are low, but no country equals this Territory for grazing and stock raising purposes. A small capital only, with industry, is required.

A contract for $2 500 000 feet of logs, to be cut on the Snohomish river, was entered into at Seattle a few days since by one mill company, and others may be taken ere this—showing signs of coming business in lumber.

Mr McKay was tried on Wednesday last before Justice Potter at Tacoma on a charge of selling lager beer to Indians. A jury trial was had and a verdict of guilty returned, and an appeal was taken to the District Court.

Mr Schuyler Woolery reports plenty of the very best quality of arable lands yet vacant in Whatcom county, and especially on the Nooksack river. Farmers in that region are all doing well and are well satisfied with the country.

The following is from the Trinidad Chronicle: "A ranchman in the upper part of the valley raised 60 000 pounds of potatoes this season on three or four acres of ground. Potatoes now sell readily at five cents per pound, and the reader can judge where the laugh comes in."

The Olympia Transcript says: "Rev C A Huntington, recently appointed Indian Agent at Neah Bay, has received his commission from Washington and will leave for his field of operation on the next steamer down Sound. The efforts of the ring failed to accomplish his defeat for the position."

The right of way for the Olympia-Tenino railroad is being secured rapidly and satisfactorily. At Tumwater all the parties whose lots are crossed and damaged by the road, with a single exception, have agreed to leave their damages to the arbitration of James Camby, James Biles and E B Kendall. No difficulty is anticipated in the country for right of way.

In the District Court at Olympia last week, by direction of the Attorney General of the United States, the prosecution against General Sprague for cutting timber or getting the privilege so to cut was stopped, and nolle pros was entered in several others of such cases by the District Attorney. United States vs Milroy was discontinued by nolle pros because of the non appearance of the prosecuting witness.

The Express says: great activity prevails at the insane asylum at Steilacoom. Mr Harmon has torn up the floor of the skating rink and will move the building up to the asylum so as to better accommodate the now large number of inmates, 46 in all. Carpenters will be busy in a few days with the fitting up of the addition, which when finished to suit the wishes of the Superintendent can but add to the wellbeing of the unfortunate inmates of that institution.

The Transcript has this: "Mr Timothy Sawyer has been removed from the position of Assistant Farmer on the Chehalis Indian reservation by Superintendent Milroy. We are glad to observe this spirit of economy and retrenchment thus manifested, as the removal of Mr Sawyer makes way for an Indian to fill the position, who will labor for $1 per day. Such strokes of finance like this out of five cent payments by the great financier at Washington ought to soon reinstate the whole country on a firm money basis."

The three National Banks of Denver have a combined capital of $400 000, which with a surplus fund of about $200 000, renders their aggregate banking capital $600 000. Then there are three private banking houses and two savings banks whose exact capital is not known, but which is probably not far from $300 000, making a total of $900 000 already employed in the banking business. Now comes the German bank with a capital of $200 000 to go into operation May 1st, and bringing the sum to a grand total of $1 100 000 in the banking capital of Denver.

A letter from Fort McRae, New Mexico, to the Santa Fe New Mexican, under date of February 20th, says that the body of an American was found in the river four miles below that post, in the skull of which were fractures and gunshot wounds. The body was identified as being one of a party of Texans who passed the fort three days before, and who represented themselves as being cattle men en route to Tucson, Arizona, for the purpose of negotiating contracts. The only one of the party known was Dick Wright, who carried with him a letter of introduction from H D Hull of Paraje. It is believed that he is well known among the cattle men in Eastern New Mexico. A letter was found on the body of the murdered man addressed "Dear Hank" and signed "Maria," and also an envelope addressed "Mr W C France, Chisholm's Ranche, Bosque Grande, New Mexico."

The Walla Walla Spirit of the 20th says: "The Walla Walla and Columbia River Railroad Company announce in a circular that on and after the 20th of March they will receive freight at the eastern terminus this side of the Touchet at reasonable rates for transportation. The rates published show a great reduction of former prices. The charges by teams from this place to Wallula have been from $6 to $10 per ton. By the railroad, freight can now be delivered at Wallula for $4 50 per ton. On up freight the charges including forwarding have been $11 50; now they can be delivered here at $5 50, saving to the shippers $6 per ton—an incalculable item on thirty miles of transportation, especially during these times when the prices of wheat are so low, and if the O S N Company take into consideration the present price of wheat, and when they commence running will put their rates down to $5 per ton, the benefit will be very great to parties who have not been able to get their wheat off, and it will greatly help the country, and farmers may then have encouragement to put in large crops of wheat."

In answer to some damaging statements made by one Williams in the Salt Lake papers about Montana, the Helena Herald says: "That there is not now nor ever has been suffering or want of any kind among the people of Montana; that our population, instead of frittering away, is gradually increasing, and has been for the last three years; that instead of 12,000 inhabitants we have not less than 25,000 bona fide white citizens; that our mines, both placer and quartz, are the richest and most inexhaustible on the continent; that our farmers and ranchmen (until within the past year) have greatly prospered, and are now doing better than the majority of farmers in the State or other Territories; that laborers command good wages and none are idle except those who are constitutionally indisposed to earn their bread by the sweat of their brow. We have a climate that is unexcelled, gold and silver mines that are fabulously rich and exhaustless, hundreds of thousands of acres of the most fertile soil on the globe, and a thrifty, prosperous, enterprising, industrious and contented people. What more could we ask?"

A correspondent at Fort Klamath, under date of March 7th, says that it has been snowing there without cessation since Feb 28th. The snow, by actual measurement, is 5 feet and 3½ inches deep upon the parade ground. It is very cold also, the thermometer ranging below zero.

The Jacksonville Times learns that such has been the loss of stock in Langell valley, that it is estimated that but one head out of every ten will survive the winter. Many persons in this county whose only wealth was their cattle are nearly bankrupted. Stock of all kind will undoubtedly be much higher than it has been for some time.

Salmon fishing is becoming quite an extensive business at the mouth of Rogue river. There were about 1,700 barrels of salmon shipped from that place last fall, and great preparations are now being made to catch the spring run of salmon. J R Norcott & Co, of San Francisco, are now employed in putting up a large canning establishment and will employ about fifty men during the spring in canning salmon. Riley & Stewart, of that place, have also established a fishery and will employ many men in fishing.

THE INFAMOUS MOIETY SYSTEM

A PART OF WM E DODGE'S STORY

WASHINGTON, D C, March 5.—William E Dodge, of the firm of Phelps, Dodge & Co, appeared before the Committee of Ways and Means to-day and gave his story of the case in which they paid in large sums as a compromise, and showing the manner in which the firm had been treated by Jayne. Dodge said, after making the explanation heretofore published, that Jayne had eminent counsel, a member of the United States House of Representatives. A discharged clerk made a bargain with the Treasury Agent, who thus became the informer. He (Dodge) wished to state that Secretary Boutwell had treated the firm fairly and honorably. Mr Boutwell advised them to go into the Courts, and if they had taken his advice they probably would not have paid the $271 000. Dodge remarked that Gen Butler said he had a single letter from Phelps, Dodge & Co which was sufficient to convict them in any United States Court. The firm, learning what it was, laughed. For the first time they imported tin for cheese vats, instead of putting it in boxes it was put in bundles, with strips of galvanized iron round them. The appraiser called their attention to the fact that the tin should have been in boxes. To avoid future trouble they wrote to their friends abroad to thereafter put the tin in boxes, with the marks of their weight and manufacture. The reply came that they would follow instructions, but the manufacturers added: "If in any respect we shall differ, let us know and we will fix it." Gen Butler now had it: "We will fix it," and thus he could convict Phelps, Dodge & Co in any Court in the United States.

The members of the firm, said Dodge, found themselves dogged by spies in any steps they took. They could not have a private meeting of the firm at night but that it was known in the dark hole at the Custom House. There was no lawyer in their office but what it was known. One of his partners as January came round opened his desk, and, culling out such letters as he wished to retain, burnt the rest. They received a letter from their attorney informing them that Jayne said that Phelps, Dodge & Co were burning up their papers and he would have them all in Ludlow Street Jail that night. How did Jayne know? Because he had under pay a man in their store, the second bookkeeper. They traced the fellow and turned him out of the store. He went where he was now employed. He was a clerk in the Postoffice. A place was obtained for him by an agent of the United States.

SOME OTHER INFORMATION

NEW YORK, March 5—Haynes, Commissioner of Customs, has had all the available force in his office at Washington, sometimes amounting to forty clerks and copyists, at work every day during the past two months, preparing a detailed list of delinquent importers in every custom district in the country, to be submitted to the Senate in answer to the resolution of Senator Bayard. The report will contain the name of every delinquent in the United States within the period extending from July 1, 1862, to June 30, 1872, and will embrace several thousand pages of names and figures. The papers will show the gross proceeds received in every case, the duties, the costs, and the expenses of the collection of the amount paid into the Treasury, the amounts paid to the Collector, Naval Officer, Surveyor and informer, the total amount distributed, and the share of the United States remaining in the Treasury.

WHAT THE PAPERS WILL SHOW

The papers are so voluminous that they will weigh several hundreds of pounds. They will show that in 10 years New York merchants were mulcted in $3,354 245 08 for attempting to evade $195,123 23 of duties. The informers got $519,032 66 and the Treasury $1,806,350 83.

San Francisco merchants were compelled to pay $826,532 06 for failure to pay $71,341 11 of duties.

CHICAGO MERCHANTS

Failed to pay $1,647 68 of duties due and had to pay forfeit to the amount of $33,042 43, of which the United States Court officers got $658 93, your Collectors got $8,458 03, and your informers pocketed $6,168 65, while the Treasury got less than half—$14,632 40.

Cincinnati was more virtuous. Her merchants paid $29,042 85, though they had evaded no duty due, and the Court officers gobbled half of it, let the informers have only $889 71, and the Treasury $9,325 27.

St Louis paid $16,078 77 for duties to the amount of $1,227 07, but singularly enough gave the Treasury two thirds. So even in the matter of

CUSTOM HOUSE OPPRESSION,

Chicago is ahead of her rivals. Here are other figures for cities near Chicago:

Detroit—Penalties $155,111 06, duties due, $4,442 96, Collector's share $35,416 39, informers share, $35,076 79, Treasury $70,496 11.

Milwaukee—Penalties, $5,775 78, duties due, only $8 22, Collector's share, $1,010 38, informer's share $776 75, Treasury $2,597 79.

Huron, Michigan—Penalties, $54,544 45, duties, $4,779 20, Collector's share $12,639 50, informer's share, $11,331 04, Treasury, $24,571 38.

TUESDAY MORNING MARCH 24 1874

WHAT OREGON NEEDS

The people of Oregon complain of hard times and scarcity of money With boundless resources of wealth with a climate in every way favorable to agricultural and manufacturing pursuits with magnificent water privileges both for manufacturing and commercial purposes with everything in short that nature could bestow upon a country to make it prosperous and happy Oregon though reasonably prosperous in a general way suffers from the want of money to carry on her internal affairs Why is this so?

The answer is not difficult when we look at all the facts that affect the question If the settlement of the American continent had commenced at the western instead of the eastern shore Oregon would to day be the richest State in the Union and an empire in population but the settlement did not begin at the western shore Circumstances have conspired in the setting up of this coast to draw the great bulk of emigration from the East into California That State is not yet full It had capacity for an immense population, and it has capacity for the reception of the emigration of a great many years yet To reach California from the East, though a little expensive is not difficult To reach Oregon is more expensive, and quite difficult it being necessary to go first to California, and then take a long additional land journey through a mountainous region and without railway transportation, or a long sea voyage in vessels of by no means first class and over seas not considered the least unpleasant in the world This is enough to discourage if not to terrify many persons who might contemplate coming to our State.

What we want in order to insure prosperity is people A population of barely a hundred thousand is totally inadequate to sustain the manufactures, and ship building and local commerce, upon which the wealth of the State must at last depend Our home consumption is not sufficient to justify capital in entering largely upon these pursuits, and hence what we do use we import This keeps the pockets of the producing classes depleted, and when they are without money everybody else is in the same condition It is idle to talk of diversified industries, of manufactures, of developing our magnificent resources of mineral, and lumber and woolen fabrics, agricultural and mechanical implements, so long as our population remains at about its present figures To compete with others in these supplies even in our own market, requires that these enterprises be undertaken by capital; and capital is not likely to embark in them very extensively with no stronger backing than that offered by so sparse a population. Oregon is now doing well—very well—in these respects considering the number of her people and their isolation from other communities Enterprise requires incentive and reasonable security And population means incentive and security.

How is the increase of population to be secured? How is the tide of emigration from the East to be caused to set Oregonward? There is but one way By direct railway communication with the Atlantic States. Till this is established, our farmers may raise wheat, our mill men send away cargoes of lumber, our salmon fisheries export their products, and still there will be no excess of money in the country, and no brisk seasons in business, except such as may arise from merely temporary causes, such as the expenditure of moneys in the construction of our local railways and the like The completion of the Northern Pacific Railway, the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake road, or the Humboldt Branch, would speedily bring to our State the realization of the grand future which is in store for her, and which sooner or later must come They who would aid in hastening the period of steady and continued prosperity should lose no opportunity to encourage the building of these great highways For whether they be completed two years, or ten years hence, the day of Oregon's final deliverance from hard times will be postponed to that date

RIVER FREIGHTS

The appearance of the Willamette Chief on the river is a large augmentation of the carrying capacity of the Wallamet River Transportation Company The Company now has, if we do not mistake five boats on the river As an illustration of the great advantage which the establishment of this line of boats has conferred upon the people up the valley, take the wheat transportation since last harvest This has been estimated at not less than 120,000 tons, exclusive of what has been carried on the railways That is, the boats of the two companies together have brought down at least 120,000 tons Now the boats used to charge the same freights as the railway, when there was only one line, and that belonged to the railway company But the advent of the new line of boats immediately forced a reduction on the old line to present rates So that the saving of the difference between the old rates and the new, is to be counted on the entire amount carried on the river by both companies This saving on the one item of wheat, according to the above estimate of the amount carried, is over $80 000 That is a nice little sum for the farmers, who freight on the river, to divide among themselves And then there is to be added to this the difference on all other kinds of freight, and on the passengers who have traveled on the boats in order to find the total of profit for which the country is indebted to the existence of the new line of boats

At the precinct of Oakland one of the largest precincts in Douglas county and the only one we have heard from only four persons attended the Republican Primary last Saturday How does that look for the "straightouts?" Our informant adds to this information that the Democrats have no better following there than the Republicans, and that nobody appears to think there is the least possible chance for anything but the Independent ticket

RATHER TOO PRACTICAL

On last Saturday one of the drummers who were engaged in beating up persons to organize the Ring primary at one of the large precincts of this city, meeting a gentleman recently arrived from the East invited him to go round to the primaries For want of something else to do he went along and when he got there he was asked if he would serve as Judge At first he demurred said it did not appear to him to be just the thing for a stranger to act in that capacity but his friend the aforementioned drummer insisted and the two persons who composed the rest of the crowd thought it would be proper enough So he at last consented and took his seat inside the door where the votes were to be received This was about 1 o'clock Hour after hour passed on with hardly a sound to break the loneliness of the stranger judge and when the town clock tolled out slowly the hour of eight only a baker's dozen votes had been cast Then the polls were declared closed by somebody outside and the box was taken by the drummer The stranger was puzzled As he walked away a suspicion entered his mind that he had been victimized He set his foot down on the sidewalk twice with a vigorous thwack and then stopped short Then he turned and walked briskly back to where the drummer was to whom he asked in a sibilant whisper "I say, wasn't the joke a little too practical considering I was a stranger in this city? I don't want to get up a difficulty and I can generally take a joke as well as the next man but there can be such a thing as carrying matters too far and it seems to me this is an example of it The friend assured him nothing of the sort was intended and that what he had seen and been a part of, was seriously intended as a primary meeting whereupon the stranger went away muttering something about the difficulty and danger the next man would encounter who attempted to come any 'gum game' or 'put up a job' on him

WHY THE PRIMARIES FAILED

The efforts of the partisan papers and whippers in to maintain discipline, the same as in the past, are proving utterly fruitless The reports from different parts of the State, of the primary meetings of the Republicans held last Saturday show that the party ties have loosened up until it was impossible, by the utmost of begging, drumming and bell ringing, to arouse the people to the slightest interest in the party contest The olden times when the whole people took a lively interest in the success of their respective parties presented a spectacle very different from these miserable fizzles But the people think in this country of newspapers and universal reading and can not be long tied to dead issues Since all the issues that gave vitality to the two parties have been settled and so settled that their revival is impossible, the people very naturally regard their immediate local wants as the first thing to be attended to The party organizations having both failed to enter into the details of our home government and give themselves to the task of securing cheap and good government there is nothing left for the people to do but unite to secure these desired ends through independent political action There is no obstacle to such co operation, as the object to be attained is equally desired by Republicans and Democrats and there exists no longer any other matter of immediate importance to divide them, This is the explanation of the meager attendance at the primaries last Saturday

A WARNING

Harper's Weekly is supposed to be about as staunch a Republican journal as there is in the United States, and certainly it is conducted with such ability as the ablest do not think it worth while to attempt to criticise It is from the leading editorial article in that journal, of the 14th instant, that we clip this

> General Butler is we say the representative of the immoral tendency of our politics, And if the Administration as seems to be now plainly evident proposes to sustain him against the representative of political decency and morality it will ruin the party The Republicans of Massachusetts will not accept General Butler as their leader and if by sustaining him the Administration pierces the line of the party in that State it will be broken every where Whether Mr Simmons be Collector at Boston or not is comparatively of little importance his nomination is the serious thing for it shows that the Administration either does not see the signs of the time or does not care for them We have no fear indeed that this baser tendency in our politics will prevail The public disgust and wrath with corruption of every kind are quite as remarkable at the moment as the corruption itself The country is dividing into those who believe in political honesty and who mean to secure it and those who laugh it to scorn as impracticable sentimentality What sincere Republicans ask and do not receive is some unmistakable sign from Washington that their Administration is with the former and not with the latter They do not see that sign in the appointment of Gov Shepherd, in the Sanborn contracts in the nomination to the Boston Collectorship as they did not see it in the approval of the salary grab in the retention of Mr Casey in the tendency to inflate the currency and in the hesitation to retrench That demand however will not be relaxed An attempt in the White House to Johnsonize the Republican party failed and effort to Butlerize it will be equally useless

NATHAN K HALL

New York exchanges announce the death of Nathan K Hall Postmaster General of the United States under the administration of Millard Fillmore, and for many years United States District Judge for the Western District of New York.

Judge Hall was born in Marcellus Onondago county in March 1810 He studied law in the office of Millard Fillmore and entered into partnership with that gentleman in 1832 He held numerous offices of trust and honor in New York, and was a Representative in Congress from 1847 to 1849 He was appointed Postmaster-General on the accession of Mr Fillmore to the Presidency which position he held until he was appointed United States Circuit Judge for the Northern Circuit of New York He continued in the discharge of his judicial duties up to the time of his death—March 2 Judge Hall is spoken of by his obituarians as "one of the purest men in the country an able and efficient officer and a devoted and reliable friend

We regret to see by the dispatches that Mrs Attorney General Williams is seriously ill

POLK COUNTY

INDEPENDENCE March 21 1874

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

To day's proceedings at the Republican primaries held in this town (of which I will give you a true and faithful account) will convince you that at least Polk county will carry out the programme of the Independent movement and elect their whole ticket at the next election—for what happened in this one of the strongest Republican precincts is a good criterion by which to judge others The meeting was to have been held at 1 o'clock but up to the time when the clock struck 2, there were only four persons present One of these Mr A I [illegible] a lifelong Democrat took pity on them and taking charge of a bell he proceeded up and down the street announcing the fact that the Republican primaries were to be held and inviting all to come and lend a helping hand but as he did not succeed very well in arousing the people Mr H Tow[illegible] took the bell in charge and succeeded by his funny remarks in getting eighteen persons to the school house among whom there were only seven Republicans who had not taken part in the Independent movement Six were straight out Democrats and five Republicans who had taken part in the Independent primaries

Mr Editor this may look ridiculous for a large precinct as Monmouth precinct is but I assure you it is a fact The worthy postmaster of Monmouth and the other two leaders were ashamed but as they came to elect delegates they were going to do it even if they had to allow Democrats or Independents to take part which is finally was done which accounts for for some of the delegates who were unanimously elected receiving 14 votes

The Convention was called to order and Mr J Vanduyne was elected Chairman and H McCord Secretary The following gentlemen were elected as delegates Isaac Vanduyne H McCord W C Whittall John Moran and W W Waterhouse Not having members enough to bestow office upon they selected men from the Independent ticket and nominated them for precinct officers One thing was very striking namely every Republican in the house was nominated for something or another either delegate justice of the peace or constable

To convince you that the Independents have a strong ticket I will mention to you a remark one of the Republican delegates made to me He said that he has no doubt that at the County Convention they will nominate, or at least endorse the nomination of Mr D Stump who has accepted the nomination of the Independents

News about town is scarce the only thing exciting that has happened was that a raft of logs with five persons on it got unmanageable from the breaking of an oar and by running against a snag broke up and one or two of the men came very near drowning Three of them being good swimmers reached land easily

JOHN D GROAT

The Independent Convention of Yamhill has nominated the following ticket State Senator A I Olds Representatives J M Pittman A I Smith Alex Reed County Judge A B Henry Clerk J [illegible] Hubbard Sheriff I H Baker Treasurer I Martin Commissioners George Dorsey and H F Ledwell School Superintendent J B Stillwell Assessor C A Wallace Surveyor J N Hibbs Coroner S A Young

As will be seen by Mr Henry's card in this morning's paper that gentleman declines the nomination for Judge

The record of proceedings in Congress March 17th contains the following In the House Cook of Georgia, offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice to inquire into the Judicial expenditures in the southern division of Oregon Adopted The Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice have a lively little job ahead

CITY.

FOR DESERTION —At the instance of the Captain seven seamen belonging to the ship Ib[illegible] were taken under arrest on Saturday and kept confined until yesterday morning when they were brought before Ralph Wilcox United States Commissioner and tried for desertion It is made to appear from the testimony in the case that the Master had demanded that they should stow the cargo which is a very unusual thing with deep water ships and they informed him that before doing the class of work desired they would see the United States Shipping Commissioner and ascertain the custom of the port The Captain at first was willing that they should go in quest of this officer but when they started he commanded them to return to duty on the ship and failing to do so procured their arrest At the conclusion of the evidence the Commissioner took the matter under advisement until this morning at 10 o clock when he will render a decision

DEAR SPORT —From the evening contemporary we learn that a severe accident occurred a few days since while a number of small boys were assembled on the bank of the river some distance south of the city. These boys had assembled for the reprehensible object of indulging in a little target practice with pistols A hat was set up as a target and the boys commenced shooting at it by turns A little fellow named Bloom was taking his aim when one of the other boys concluded to change his position and running between Bloom and the target received a shot in the fleshy part of the thigh This accident put an end to the impromptu sport, and Bloom who thought that he had really committed murder ran home and left the remainder of the party to take care of his dead and wounded A physician was called and the wounded limb dressed A summary stop ought to be put to this really dangerous sort of out-door sport.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS —Mr J S Barrett is canvassing this city as the agent of A Roman & Co., for the sale of the new book The Gilded Age, written by Mark Twain and Charles Dudley Warner This is by far the most amusing of all Twain s books, hitting off the follies of the American people with admirable taste and humor Mr Barrett expects to remain here only a short time, and it will be necessary for those who wish the book to subscribe soon The snow blockade on the Pacific railways has occasioned some delay in the arrival of the books for delivery, but Mr Barrett has a few on hand and expects a full invoice at an early day Price of the work in cloth, $4 50 library style, $5

HIGH WATER EXPECTED —To insure an early rise of the Upper Columbia all that is required is a continuance of the present warm pleasant weather East of the mountains the temperature promises soon to reach an altitude which will cause the snow to melt. Yesterday the weather was as follows

Walla Walla—Weather clear and warm thermometer 55°

Cascades—Clear and pleasant thermometer 50°

Wallula—Clear, thermometer, 50° river at a stand

Dalles—Weather clear thermometer, 50°

HEARD FROM.—Mr Hunter, who is School Clerk of one of the districts in the eastern portion of this county, has been missed since last Tuesday He came to this city a few days prior to his disappearance when he received about $300 from the County Treasurer, that the district for which he was acting as Clerk was entitled It is said that Hunter was engaged in gambling on Monday, and the supposition is that he lost nearly all that sum Nothing has been seen or heard of him since Tuesday, when a friend received a letter from Hunter which stated that he was then at Astoria.

AN ERRONEOUS RUMOR —The Salem Statesman of yesterday announces the death of Miss Angeline Grubbe, formerly a resident of Roseburg and sister in law of Dr E R Fiske a well known surgeon and physician of Salem At a late hour last evening we received a telegram signed by several Salem friends of Miss Grubbe, requesting us to contradict the rumor, which we do with the greatest pleasure.

FROM HONOLULU.—The little bark Mattie Macleay, Captain Forbes, arrived from Astoria yesterday, in tow of the Emma Hayward She came from Honolulu and brings a full cargo of sugar molasses and tropical fruits The bark lies alongside Flanders wharf, and will commence discharging cargo to-day

UNDER ADVISEMENT —Charles Lawrence was arrested on Saturday, charged with having inhumanly maltreated a dog Yesterday morning the case was called in Police Court After hearing all the testimony in the case the Court took the matter under advisement until this morning

SUPREME COUNSELLOR —Among the passengers on board the steamer Ajax is the Rev A J Enos of California This gentleman is Supreme Counsellor of the Order of Champions of the Red Cross of the Coast He comes on business connected with the Order

TRIAL TRIP.

Availing of an invitation we found ourselves on board the new steamer Willamette Chief belonging to the W R T Co yesterday afternoon at one o'clock This was the hour designated for the new craft to leave her wharf to make the trial trip Besides several of the officers and stockholders of the company there were present a number of invited guests. A few minutes after one o clock the engineer signaled to the pilot that sufficient steam was raised to make the maiden effort Responding to the signal, the pilot vigorously tapped the bell, and we were off The new craft behaved quite handsomely and moved rapidly and gracefully away from the dock The prow was turned down stream, and the steamer headed directly for the wood yard some distance below the city On reaching that point a considerable quantity of fuel was taken on board, and the Chief continued on down the river She went about four miles below the city and returning, passed in front of the city to near the foot of Ross Island, and then came to her wharf Everything worked to a charm About one hundred pounds of steam was turned which, with the engines working at a two-thirds stroke, was sufficient to send the b at along at a handsome rate of speed The engines are beautiful specimens of mechanism and work without the slightest perceptible flaw The plans were executed by the well known firm of Messrs Krumbein & Gilbert, and the casting was done at the Willamette Iron Works The work was done in first class style and reflects great credit on all concerned The boat is allowed to carry 1.5 pounds of steam, the engines are five feet stroke 9-inch bore and have a working capacity of about 400 horse power When all the machinery becomes worn down a little we feel justified in saying from the creditable manner in which the Chief acquitted herself that she will be among the most rapid boats on either the Willamette or Columbia rivers Freight and passenger accommodations are very ample on the new boat The cabin is finished in the most elaborate expensive style and nothing which can contribute to the comfort or convenience of the passengers has been omitted. She is a valuable acquisition to the public wants, and such a one of which her owners should feel proud In a few days the Willamette Chief will be ready to take the regular line. The boat was built with special reference to running between Portland and Albany but when trade demands will occasionally ascend to Corvallis The trial trip was made yesterday under the supervision of Captain Holman who manned the wheel and Mr John Marshall who manipulated the throttle Both are to the satisfaction of all We are not at present able to state how the boat [illegible] will be officered

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT and the elections are agitating our citizens just now and where to procure a suit of clothing that is bound to wear one that looks well upon a person and one that does not force a man to the bed rock to possess it, is a question. This is easily answered At that old established house of Beck & Waldman they fill the bill exactly Only take a look through their stock to be convinced Boy's clothing is a specialty at this house and mothers note the fact.

George W Johnson has purchased the entire business and stock of goods of J N Lawrence and will hereafter be found at the foot of [illegible] street East side with a good stock of general merchandise.

UNION TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.

There is no perceptible abatement of earnest purpose and prayerful interest in the ranks of the Temperance [illegible] if the attendance at the Union Temperance Prayer Meeting held last evening at the Taylor street M E Church can be regarded as an indication The vestry room was densely crowded with ladies and gentlemen and an unusual degree of interest pervaded the entire audience during the exercises of the evening

At the hour appointed the meeting was called to order by Rev A L Medbury singing a familiar hymn followed near the close of which Rev G H Atkinson who was to conduct the meeting entered the room At the conclusion of the hymn Rev Mr Atkinson read a Scriptural lesson after which he made some beautiful appropriate and touching remarks which [illegible] press the audience Prayer followed and then a devotional hymn in which all present joined with the spirit [illegible]

Rev Mr Izer arose and after a few prefatory remarks read a letter written by a lady in McMinnville to a lady of this city who is prominently connected with the present temperance crusade The writer stated that about two weeks ago the temperance movement was inaugurated in that hamlet At the time there were only four ladies who took the initiatory steps and who were bold enough to begin the raid but now the letter says there are fifty ladies whose names are enrolled as earnest active workers and who are united in purpose and effort to drive the liquor traffic beyond the limits of the town This number has been divided into three divisions each delegation visiting the only saloon in the place once a day which makes three times that the vender of liquor is besieged by these faithful and persistent laborers in the cause of temperance Scarcely does one delegation retire from fatigue before the place is occupied by fresh recruits and thus, she says the glorious work goes triumphantly on Five times the writer says the saloon door has been locked against their admission once they have been locked in and twice have the ladies been subjected to rude treatment and been compelled to listen to harsh language Notwithstanding the work was inaugurated and has been continued under many adverse circumstances yet the writer says the ladies are not in the least disheartened but on the contrary are more than ever determined to carry the war into the enemy s camp, The writer concluded by asking the earnest prayers and sympathies of the Woman s Temperance League of Portland

Mr Medbury next addressed the audience He recited his own personal experiences wherein the demon of strong drink had got possession of his father resulting in the death of his mother from a broken heart and the reduction of his home to almost a state of beggary In all our brief life we have never been called upon to listen to a more touching and truly heart rending recital of the wrongs and woes of strong drink When speaking of his poor mother whose memory seemed almost too sacred to touch upon, the speaker s voice choked with emotions too full for utterance his whole frame trembled like an aspen, while tears of sorrow rolled down his cheeks It was a sight at which the most callous, obdurate heart could not brook unmoved and untouched In all that large audience there were but few tearless eyes

An invitation was extended to all persons who desired to say anything which could encourage the cause In response, several related incidents which had occurred under their own personal observation and offered their earnest sympathies and hearty co operation in the labor of reformation As the committees were not ready to submit their reports the meeting adjourned until this evening when the usual devotional exercises will be resumed at the regular hour Full reports are expected from the committees this evening To-day a general prayer meeting will be held at 12 o clock in the basement of the church At one o clock the ladies will hold their prayer meeting An earnest, settled determination seems to characterize the action of the Temperance League To day the canvassing of the city will be resumed

ARIZONA MILITARY NOTES.

The following items which we take from the Prescott (Arizona) Miner of the 6th inst may not be destitute of interest to Portlanders

A Washington letter of February 10th informs us that Capt E D Baker, Capt A H Nickerson, U S A, and Messrs Kimball and Grant were still in that city

General Crook left for Verde this morning, accompanied by Lieut Ross, his A D C They go through to Verde to-day, and start early to morrow morning for San Carlos and Grant

The band of the 23d Infantry favored our citizens with another open air concert on the evening of Saturday last From what we were able to gather from the sounds through office walls and windows, we thought the music rich and the selections splendid

We hope General Crook will hurry to the front and direct operations against the late boarders of the San Carlos Reservation who appear to have bluffed one or two small commands down there It will never do to let them get away with a third bluff, and we can already count two But the General is hurrying and will (should no accident befall him) very soon cause the villains to play another kind of game A little of his strategy is equal to a regiment of troops

Gen Crook who is a very modest officer has yielded to the entreaties of his family and friends and sat for his picture which was a few days ago, taken by Mr Flanders who to day showed us one which we pronounce excellent The General came down from the Fort in a snow storm dodged up stairs and pulling from under his great coat a suspicious looking bundle, unrolled therefrom a brigadier general s dress coat which after the ceremony was hastily peeled and folded away out of sight

FROM THE YAKIMA MINES

ELLENSBURG Yakima Co W T

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

We see in your paper many reports about the Swauk mines, written, I suppose by men who have never been there or else by some one who expected to find the gold lying on the top of the ground and because he did not find it so reports the thing a humbug Now everybody knows that gold is heavy, etc sinks to the bottom (or bed rock) and that it takes great labor and expense to prospect a mining camp and this camp having been discovered so late last fall the boys have not had an opportunity to find out whether it is a rich one or not The Discovery Claim is the only one being worked at present and that is worked at great disadvantage owing to the cold and snow but the boys are satisfied with the results, and think when the summer comes that they will find it big Several other claims are being opened preparatory to being worked when the weather moderates

Gold has been discovered on the Yakima river above the mouth of the Swauk One man reports finding ground that will pay $2 50 to $[illegible] per day to the rocker So our discovery boys must have had quite a sack of Kootenai dust to have salted so much ground (as reported in your issue of the 7th inst) Kootenai miners could not be mistaken whereas if they had felt disposed they could have found gold not only in Discovery Bar but for miles up and down the creek, but we don t think they were much on the muscle and might be mistaken

Now I am no miner myself but I see and know a great many who are practical miners—men with nerve, who know where to look for gold and know likewise how to get it and nine out of ten of this class of men are candid in their opinion that there will be rich gold mines (on or near the Swauk) discovered this coming summer We don t ask any one to come and if they do they come at their own risk and if they stay away and miss a good thing that is their lookout too. MR SLATER SETS THE MATTER AT REST

DALLES March 21, 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In your issue of this date I find the following ' At the Democratic ratification meeting at Salem, Hon J H Slater addressed the audience for Mr La Dow the nominee for Congress giving his reason for doing so that that gentleman did not make speeches

I desire to say that you are entirely in error and injustice is done both to Mr La Dow and myself in the paragraph above quoted I did not say that Mr La Dow did not make speeches On the contrary I did say that I had no doubt that he would make an able and efficient canvass I trust that you will do me the justice to make the correction I am sir, very truly yours J H SLATER

The Stomach's Revenge.

The stomach cannot be maltreated with impunity Overload it with food irritate it with fiery liquors impair its activity or vitiate its juices by any outrage of the laws of health and it revenges itself through the liver the bowels the kidneys the brain or the nervous system and sometimes through all these organs simultaneously in succession There is scarcely any variety of bodily or mental pain or discomfort which it does not inflict upon those who abuse and overtask its powers Under these circumstances there is but one medicine to which the sufferer can resort with the certainty of obtaining immediate and permanent relief The most wholesome and genial of all stomachics and correctives Hostetter s Stomach Bitters produces an immediate and most beneficent change in the condition of the patient The whole digestive system is at once invigorated and soothed the liver regulated and toned the bowels relieved of all obstructions the spirits cheered and the relaxed nerves strengthened and steadied

GERALD MASSEY TO JOHN HAY

CREETING ON HIS WEDDING DAY

The following lines by Gerald Massey, The Poet of the People, have never before appeared in print

I said when I crossed the ocean
You helped bridge with your own arch way
Twas worth while I have a notion
If only to meet John Hay

"Just long enough have you tarried
And this is your Wedding Day
Could double your life when married
And treble your luck John Hay

May heart to heart together
Make honeymoon all the way
And bring you the heavenliest weather
Through the long voyage John Hay

I can't speak one of the speeches
But I send you a greeting an I pray
For lots of Little Breeches
Hell to Split round you John Hay

EMERSON BENNETT

The Philadelphia Ledger contains the following brief biographical sketch of this eminent American novelist

Emerson Bennett one of the best living American novelists, was born in Monson Hampden county Mass March 16 1822 His earlier years were mostly devoted to study In 1840 he began his literary career as a poet, in the city of New York, one of his earliest productions appearing in the New York Tribune In 1844 he was connected with the Cincinnati Commercial then in its infancy In 1847 he produced his first regular novel 'Bandits of Osage" which was published in Cincinnati, and of which the sale was so rapid as to exhaust several editions in a few months. This was the first original novel ever purchased and published west of the Allegheny Mountains, Our author's success being thus assured, other novels rapidly followed, and among these his "Prairie Flower," of which more than one hundred thousand copies have been sold, and the the sale of which is still steady

For more than a quarter of a century Mr Bennett has followed literature as a profession, and has produced some forty different works, which have attained great popularity in this country and many of which have been republished in England, France, Germany, &c, one of his latest having been translated into the Scandinavian tongue He has also been contributor to the most popular literary journals of the day, including the New York Ledger, New York Weekly, and the Philadelphia Saturday Night, thus reaching millions of readers

As a writer of a style of literature peculiarly American, Emerson Bennett holds a front rank Of this style he may be said to be the founder, for it did not exist previous to his first Indian and Border tales, though his imitators can now be numbered by the score His scenes have been drawn from nature his characters from life, he has used fiction to cloth the naked facts of history and present the latter in an attractive form, the legends, traditions, manners, and customs of the frontiers have been by him most faithfully chronicled in his different works, and we therefore think, we hazard nothing in saying that to him as much as to any author, living or dead, the public will be indebted for a purely national literature.

In all that he writes there seems to be an irresistible charm, holding the reader spell bound from the beginning to the end, and his characters are so truthfully drawn as to find that universal recognition accorded to the creations of Dickens His style is terse, earnest, vigorous, and pure, while the sentiments and morals of his stories are always unexceptional Under his glowing pen vice is stripped of its gaudy coloring and held up for abhorrence; while virtue, though humble and lowly and clothed with rags, is won from its timid retreat and brought forth that the good in heart may do it homage

Emerson Bennett has been a resident of Philadelphia since 1850 In 1847 he was married to Miss Eliza Gertrude Daly, a native of this city, and with whom he still enjoys the comforts of a happy domestic life They have two children—a son and daughter. The son, Emerson Bennett, Jr, is a promising young lawyer in successful practice at the Philadelphia Bar, and the daughter, Julia Gertrude Bennett, a poetess and occasional contributor to the Saturday Night, to which popular journal her father is now permanently attached

BEECHER, ON HIS LOVE FOR NATURE.—Oh, let me tell you a little bit about myself once in a while I wouldn't take all the books of the Alexandrian library for the comfort I get out of nature Nay I had almost said I would rather lose my Bible than my world There is no sunlight that does not speak to me of God I sit down on the hill side in the summer afternoon and the grasshoper jumps over me freemanlike, jumping first, and looking where he will land afterward I sit so still that the birds forget me, and sing as though I was not there The ants creep all over me I am in fellowship with all I am never so near to Him This earth is a cathedral, whose windows are painted with rare beauty Every day is a leaf in God's outside Bible I did not once enjoy all this, but I owe to Ruskin more than to any theologian. Eyes I had but saw not, ears I had but didn't hear, I have become Hebraized I have gone back to the noble stock, to the people who learned to discover the invisible God by the use of things seen —From his Lecture before the Yale Divinity School

The failure of Congress to take any definite action upon the currency question, has been a depressing effect upon all general business interests of the country and business men look in vain for some action of the National Legislature responsible for the dullness now prevailing. An Eastern writer on this subject treats it at length and claims with much reason that as the case now stands business men have no reliable basis for calculations and are therefore reluctant to push their enterprises Those who would buy are naturally apprehensive that values will recede and those who sell cannot at the same time protect themselves that with a given time values will increase. The importer is uncertain whether he will be able to add more or less to his invoice figures and the jobber for a kindred reason must wait for the issue of currency as some standard upon the value of which he can rely Manufacturers don't know how much to produce for a market in which no one can be placed and so Congress is responsible for the comparative inactivity The ramifications of the retail trade throughout the country obey, of course, the same logical law Meanwhile money continues to accumulate at all leading centres of trade because of the lack of profitable employment for it It is hoped that the merchants meeting will have the effect to incite Congress to definitely fix the volume of currency and thus enable the spring trade to proceed

Prudence seems to be a general characteristic of trade at present and though the volume of business is a fair average one yet it hardly comes up to the expectation and merchants are cautious as it is not yet known what effect will follow the action of Congress for the obvious reason that it is not known what that action will be Business men want to know whether the currency is to be inflated and whether there is to be additional taxation It is clear enough that it is impossible at present to operate understandingly in tea coffee tobacco spirits or any other article that may be selected for additional taxation An addition to the currency would also unsettle values These questions should be settled as soon as possible in the interest of the business community

The bulk of the surplus grain of last year's production in our State being now sold and exported and the prospect of another large yield being a flattering one it behooves the business men and especially the farming community to calculate upon the chances of securing a sufficient supply of tonnage for the approaching harvest year For the crop of 1873-74 it was estimated that it needed at least one hundred vessels of 1 000 tons each to carry our grain and Flour We have already had half that number of foreign bound here and besides have shipped to San Francisco between 70 000 and 80 000 tons of Wheat and Flour alone leaving out some considerable shipments of Feed ground from Wheat The surplus yet in the State is not much less than 30 000 but this will in a great measure be worked off on coasters before the incoming of the new crop It is not at all too soon to be in the agitation of the question of a tonnage supply for the crop of 1874-5 which we cannot now believe will be any less than the last Some movements in this direction we are glad to say have already been made and the opening rates seem rather more favorable than those which the country has borne heretofore The terms of the charters effected of vessels to arrive during the coming harvest season are still however the usual £1 higher than similar charters for San Francisco. Some of these charters are coming from a new direction a fact which denotes the increased attention which our growing trade is receiving New York advices of the 14th inst. inform us that the provincial bark St Patrick at Boston and the provincial ship St Nicholas bound to Rio have been chartered to load at Portland, Oregon for the United Kingdom via Cork with wheat at £3 and the American bark Clara bound to Buenos Ayres from Portland Oregon to Liverpool direct, at £4 17s 6d all three to arrive before the last of December

At New York on the date last mentioned the freight market in all departments was flat Petroleum freights from New York and Philadelphia, to Europe have dropped a shilling on a barrel and were inactive at that Grain and cotton freights were quiet and nominally lower and so through out the whole list. So now is a favorable time for Oregon to secure the means of transportation on better terms than she has had heretofore

SCIENTIFIC AND SAFE TREATMENT.

When applied with Dr Pierce's Nasal Douche and accompanied with Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as constitutional treatment, Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy procures perfect cures of the worst cases of Catarrh and Ozæna of many years standing This thorough course of medication constitutes the only scientific rational safe and successful manner of treating this odious disease that has ever been offered to the afflicted. So successful has it proven that the proprietor has long offered a standing reward of $500 for a case of Catarrh which he cannot cure

INDISPUTABLE EVIDENCE

Thos J Bond of South Brooklyn N Y writes that his wife had suffered since a child with Catarrh until it had resulted in what eminent physicians pronounced consumption that she used Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and they have worked wonders with her case

STEALING OUR THUNDER

People should beware of the impostors who not only try to imitate Dr Pierce's Family Medicine but also copy his original style of advertising by offering various sized rewards for cases of Catarrh and other diseases which they can not cure Those who do not possess sufficient intelligence to enable them to write original advertisements of their own but have to steal those of others are not likely to have made great and valuable discoveries in Medicine Look out for them
